The Microlending Act, 2018 (No. 7 of 2018) is there to protect borrowers who are disadvantaged by illegal conducts of microlender.

...How to lodge a complaint?

When borrowing money from a micro-lender, always remember the story of Anna. If you do not take the necessary precautions, you may be left in a bad spot. Remember to only borrow money you can afford to pay back by first considering your existing payment obligations before taking out new loans. All microlenders are required to obtain from you, all your payment obligations (e.g. groceries, school fees, other accounts, water, electricity, maintenance payments etc...before advancing you with a new loan, or another further loan. People like Tangeni are out there to take advantage of the financially illiterate consumer, leaving you exposed, if you are not cautious.

NAMFISA is here to help consumers if you have been treated unfairly by the non-banking financial service providers such as microlenders, medical aid funds, pension funds and insurance companies.

Visit our website, or call our consumer toll-free number for assistance. Don't wait until you are in debt that you cannot pay back.
